

Handel's Messiah at Musikverein, Vienna

Written by Jill Kerr Tepe

Monday, 07 February 2011 22:47 - Last Updated Monday, 25 April 2011 10:57

Encountering art in Vienna is like trying to find sand at the beach -- there is no scarcity of it.

Unfortunately, most people view art experiences beyond a museum visit as quite intimidating, and far from exhilarating. But on a recent trip to Vienna at Christmastime, I found myself thoroughly enraptured by some classical performance art in Vienna.

Vienna is an exquisitely chic city, long-regarded as the music capital of Europe, and rightly so. Its plethora of opera houses, concert halls, and music academies would let even the most ignorant of travelers know that a powerful empire does indeed still exist on the banks of the Danube: and the empress herself is Music. There is no shortage of performances, so one just needs to decide what, when, where, and how much. Here's where I hit a snag -- how can I really choose just a few of these precious gems?

Handel's Messiah at Musikverein, Vienna

Written by Jill Kerr Tepe

Monday, 07 February 2011 22:47 - Last Updated Monday, 25 April 2011 10:57

Stumped by a problem? Visit www.stumped.com for help with your homework or

Handel's Messiah at Musikverein, Vienna

Written by Jill Kerr Tepe

Monday, 07 February 2011 22:47 - Last Updated Monday, 25 April 2011 10:57

Handel's Messiah at Musikverein, Vienna

Written by Jill Kerr Tepe

Monday, 07 February 2011 22:47 - Last Updated Monday, 25 April 2011 10:57

